ABOUT

I am a third year Textile and Apparel Design student at the National Institute of Design, Andhra Pradesh. My practice sits at the intersection of material research, craft, and design — with a particular interest in understanding what fibres can become beyond their conventional applications. I am drawn to processes that are slow and considered — weaving, embroidery, surface design — and to the questions that emerge when you work closely with material.

ACADEMIC PROJECTS

Woven Design Project
Matka Woven Design
Handwoven Tussar silk fabric using dobby weave with gindle cotton gradation. Zero waste pattern. Group project with Chittoor artisans.

Advanced Weaving
Blue Damsel
Wadded double cloth weaving with zari threads, inspired by the blue damselfly's iridescence.

Basic Weaving
Scarlet & Sage
Foundation weave structures — plain, twill, satin, basket — using a colour palette derived from the plum-headed parakeet.

Fabric Construction
Blue Damsel
Fabric manipulation using organza and silk — layering and stitching techniques inspired by damselfly wing structures.

Surface Development
Embroidery
Running stitch exploration — investigating repetition, direction, density and scale to create varied surface textures.

Apparel Design
Cocktail Dress
Cotton cocktail dress with princess cut, cowl neck, and ikat detail — pattern drafted and constructed from scratch.
